Dr. Lebensohn is a board certified family physician that has additional training in psychiatry, family therapy and integrative medicine. She joined the Family and Community Medicine department in 1993 and has functioned in different roles, co-director of the Behavioral Health Program for the residency, Residency Program Director from 1999-2007 and Associate Head for Clinical Affairs 2003-2007. As the Residency Program Director, she helped develop the Sports Medicine and the Integrative Family Medicine fellowships, which she continues to direct. Since 2007 she has served as a mentor in the College of Medicine Societies program and has developed an online curriculum in Integrative Medicine this is implemented in Family Medicine and Internal Medicine. In addition Dr. Lebensohn is the director of the student run clinics at Commitment to Underserved People Program: Mind, Family/Shubitz, Women, Kids, Asylum clinics-free clinics that serve uninsured people in Tucson. She has a special interest in maternal-child health, women’s health, behavioral health, integrative medicine and cross-cultural aspects of medicine. She is bilingual, Spanish and English. Outside of Medicine, Dr. Lebensohn enjoys spending time and traveling with her family, being outdoors and practicing yoga.

Heritage Healing Practices

Caring for Latino Families/Migration and acculturation

October 27th
3:00 pm- 4:00 pm

Drachman A114

RSVP:
https://tinyurl.com/uzyy2t2r

Topics addressed:

1. Healthcare as a privilege vs a right. Pathways for immigration/migration, resources for undocumented individual, how health care providers can support undocumented individuals and migrants/asylum seekers
2. Importance of language, care at the beginning and end of life, importance of family, ways in which Latino families make healthcare decisions
3. Western healthcare view “person-patient centered” vs “relationship-family centered” care, “integrating behavioral health into primary medical care”, “integrative/wholistic medicine approach”

RSVP

✉️ uahs-edi@email.arizona.edu