Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders are Indigenous peoples of what we now know as 'Australia.' Such as the US, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have endured intergenerational trauma from settler-colonialism, genocide, and assimilation. Many Indigenous people in ‘Australia' are and have been speaking back against these hegemonic systems of violence through scholarship and activism.

In this presentation, Professor Bronwyn Carlson, Madi Day, Andy Farrell, and Tetei Bakic will bring in their Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander perspectives and teachings for holistic care and well-being into a global Indigenous future with special guest Souksavanh T. Keovorabouth, Diné.

University of Arizona Students will be able to talk with presenters after the event at our free student lunch off-campus. Please register using the link below.

QUESTIONS? williamocarson@arizona.edu
CONTACT US felina@arizona.edu